In moving from the lo-fi prototype to the hi-fi prototype, I kept the basic layout the same but added some details to make the cart more readable. For example, I added a thin line in between the cart items so that the different items appear more distinct. In the details portion of the cart items, I also changed the price to reflect the unit price, and would not update with the quantity selected. Instead, the quantity and price would be reflected in the total price. I also added in the footer portion of the website, as it is present in all pages across the site.
